

Summary of the invention

The invention relates to a method to search for male antifertility drugs based on activity determination of phospholipid hydroperoxide glutathione peroxidase (PHGPx) derived from human tissue or human cells or from related mammalian species.